The 'house of horrors' cleanup to last for days

House of horrors will likely take until Tuesday to clean

Blackstone. Cleanup of the home where three infant bodies were found has been ongoing for days.

Cleanup crews toiled away in knee-deep debris and refuse throughout the weekend at a home officials are calling a house of horrors, and they could be cleaning up the squallor until this Tuesday.

A Blackstone woman is being held without bail in connection to the St. Paul Street home, where the remains of three infants were found last week.

Erika Murray, 31, was charged with an array of crimes in connection with those deaths and child endangerment in Uxbridge District Court last week.

Last month, the state took into custody four children who lived at the home and whose ages ranged from 5 months to 13 years. The Milford Daily News described the home as a dirty, vermin-infested abode that contained stacks of soiled diapers. Piles of rubbish were said to be everywhere and the children who lived there existed in an ever-present filth.

Town Administrator Daniel Keyes said Blackstone, a small town of 9,000 located 35 miles southwest of Boston on the Rhode Island border, said he was shocked at the home's conditions. He said there was feces on the walls of the home.

"You always say 'My God that doesn't happen in our town.' Well it did," said Keyes.

Blackstone nightmare

"You always say, 'My God that doesn't happen in our town.' Well it did."

Daniel Keyes, Blackstone town administrator

Blackstone Board of Health Chairman William Walsh told The Globe, "It's the worst I've ever seen in my career working for the Board of Health and Inspectional Services."

The Globe reported that Murray's attorney, Keith Halpern, thinks his client suffers from mental illness.

Police first stumbled upon the property when a neighbor complained of a crying child in late August. They did not uncover the remains of the infants until this past week, when authorities returned to search the property more thoroughly.

Murray is being held at the women's prison in Framingham.

High times at Hemp Fest despite park smoking ban

Spirits were high over the weekend on Boston Common, where thousands attended the 25th Annual Boston Freedom Rally, which calls for the legalization of marijuana.

In December, the city's Parks and Recreation Commission voted to ban the smoking of tobacco, marijuana and vaporized substances in its more than 250 parks, squares, cemeteries and beaches — including the Common.

But on Sunday, it seemed the ban had little to no effect on the smoke-friendly event, despite the threat of a $250 smoking fine. Patrol officers meandered peacefully through crowds that emitted that unmistakable fragrance, and rallygoers made no attempt to hide their blazing ways.

"I heard about [the smoking ban], and it's not going to stop me. I think that's outrageous," said Andrew, 24, who declined to give his last name as he puffed on a thick blunt. "The country was founded on the tobacco plant, and the fact that they're slowly trying to outlaw it — I think it's ridiculous. It's crazy."

Longtime rallygoer Chris, 24, said he is drawn to the event because, "Where else can you smoke pot in front of cops?" His friend Stefani, 24, said officers were keeping their distance from attendees.

"It's been pretty laid-back from what I've seen. They're just walking around," she said.

Visit Metro.us to view a photo gallery of Sunday's Freedom Rally on the Common.

A Boston Police spokeswoman said she had no information on any citations being handed out at the rally, and a patrol officer at the scene said officers were giving out verbal warnings to smokers "unless they blow smoke right in my face."

Green Line extension cost rises to $2 billion

The anticipated cost of the roughly 4.5-mile Green Line Extension has increased from $1.4 billion to nearly $2 billion with an anticipation that federal dollars will pay for half the construction.

The new cost estimate includes a "budgetary cushion" and additions to the project's scope, according to MassDOT.

The long-awaited extension will bring the trolley from East Cambridge out through Somerville to Medford. SHNS

Boston band: U2 cribbed our chorus

"The chorus is similar," said Battle House's Doug Harry. "None of the rest of the song is, but in the chorus, it's same words, same rhythm, he repeats it the same number of times, pretty close to the same melody." METRO

Boston. Madison Park headmaster resigns after disorganized first week

The headmaster of Boston's only vocational school has resigned after a tumultuous first week.

Dr. Diane Ross Gary leaves Madison Park Technical Vocational High School in Roxbury following student protests over lack of class assignments and a revelation that she did not complete her headmaster certification.

To date, the school year has been marked with confusion and disorganization for Madison Park students. Teachers were still being hired as of Sept. 4 and many students did not have classes for the first few days of school as class schedules had yet to be worked out.

"A leadership change is the right thing to do at this time," said Boston Public Schools Interim Superintendent John McDonough.

Arlington. Alleged coffee shop bathroom peeper due to be arraigned today

A man arrested for allegedly rigging a hidden camera inside the women's restroom of an Arlington cafe is expected to be arraigned today.

On Saturday, police arrested Joseph B. Hennessy, 53, of Salem, New Hampshire, and charged him with disturbing the peace and photographing an unsuspecting nude person.

Police say Hennessy set up a camera inside the bathroom of the Kickstand Cafe, located at 594 Mass Ave., around 8 a.m. Saturday.

Police believe Hennessy was streaming video from the camera to a device "he was using inside the common area of the restaurant."

Police seized the device that was allegedly used in the illicit surveillance and plan to talk to New Hampshire authorities about Hennessy. He is being held without bail until his arraignment in Cambridge today.

This marks the first case in Arlington history that falls under the specific state law that pertains to the surveillance of naked people.

Police believe Hennessy may have frequented other establishments in the area.

"This is a deeply troubling case, and I commend the victim for coming forward and helping us take this offender off the streets of our community," said Arlington Police Chief Frederick Ryan in a statement. DANNY MCDONALD

Bernie Sanders, one of the Senate's leading liberals, said on Sunday he is thinking about running for U.S. president in 2016 as either a Democrat or an independent in a move that could complicate Hillary Clinton's path to the White House.

'Goodell must go' signs flown above stadiums

Women's rights. The demonstration comes as the NFL scrambles to manage criticism over its handling of Ray Rice.

A women's rights group flew banners over pro football stadiums on Sunday calling on NFL Commissioner Roger Goodell to resign over his handling of former Baltimore Ravens star Ray Rice's domestic violence case, the group said.

The organization, UltraViolet, flew banners reading, "#GoodellMustGo," over stadiums in Cleveland, New Jersey and San Francisco ahead of Sunday's games. The group says it will also fly the signs before tonight's game in Indianapolis.

The three-time Pro Bowler was cut by the Ravens and indefinitely suspended from the league last week after website TMZ published a security video taken inside a New Jersey casino elevator showing Rice knocking out his then-fiancee.

Goodell originally suspended Rice for just two games — a move that drew heavy criticism from many fans. REUTERS

Al Qaeda denies decline, acknowledges 'mistakes' by its branches

Al Qaeda dismissed as "lies" a U.S. assessment that it is in decline, but a defiant online message issued by the network on Sunday made no mention of the ultra-hardline Islamic State group seen as its rival for the leadership of global jihad.

"Whatever slip-ups or errors [that regional branches] may have committed are limited in number in the midst of mountains of good deeds and successes," said Hosam Abdul Raouf, an Egyptian veteran of the militant group. He said compensation and apologies had been given to unintended victims.

Raouf, who served under Osama Bin Laden, said the group was expanding across the world. REUTERS

U.S. Secretary of State John Kerry has been touring the Middle East to try to secure backing for U.S. efforts to build a coalition to fight the Islamic State militants who have grabbed territory in Syria and Iraq.

"We have countries in this region, countries outside of

"And we also have a growing number of people who are prepared to do all the other things," he said in remarks broadcast on Sunday on the CBS program "Face the Nation." REUTERS

Darryl Hannah and Neil Young: The new hot celeb couple?

In the "not actually that surprising when you think about it" department, Darryl Hannah and Neil Young are reportedly an item — just a little over a month after Young split from his wife of 36 years. "They've been dating for months. They've taken no effort to even hide it," a source tells People magazine. "They've appeared at many, many protest rallies together over the past year. The fans have known about this for months." Wow! If that isn't the snarkiest anonymous source quote in history. It's like, "What, you only just heard about Darryl Hannah and Neil Young now? Loser!" Anyway, Young even reportedly took regular Skype notes from Hannah on his recently recorded album and told others in the studio that she is his girlfriend. Because nothing says blossoming romance like a face on a laptop screen critiquing your guitar solos.

Kanye stops a show because of two people

Kanye West is getting all sorts of heat for halting a performance in Sydney when his demands that every single person in the arena get on their feet wasn't met due to two uncooperative fans. "I can't do this show until everybody stand up," West told the crowd. "Unless you got a handicap pass and you get special parking and s—." Yeah, about that: West apparently spotted two audience members who were still seated, and when he singled them out, one waved her prosthetic limb at him, prompting an appropriate response from West of, "OK, you fine." He then turned his attention to the second one despite others trying to signal that the fan was actually wheelchair-bound and not just recalcitrant. According to the Daily Mail Australia, West would not continue with the show until he had staff confirm the non-standing offender was indeed in a wheelchair. He's nothing if not thorough.

Oprah to blame for Lohan's London stint

If Londoners aren't thrilled about having Lindsay Lohan as a new fixture, they have Oprah Winfrey to thank. Lohan tells the Telegraph that her Winfrey-produced reality series made life in NYC untenable. "After the Oprah show, it was kind of hard for me to be in New York," she says. "There started to be paparazzi, and I didn't have that in New York in the beginning." Later in the interview, Lohan implies that she was doing court-ordered community service in a morgue when Whitney Houston's body was rolled in.

Box office. 'Guardians' isn't the top moneymaker for first weekend in ages

Thriller "No Good Deed," the story of an escaped convict who terrorizes a woman and her children inside their home, seized the top spot on U.S. and Canadian box office charts over the weekend, beating family sequel "Dolphin Tale 2."

"No Good Deed" collected $24.5 million in domestic ticket sales from Friday through Sunday, according to estimates from tracking firm Rentrak. "Dolphin Tale 2," the sequel to a 2011 hit about a plucky marine mammal, finished second with $16.6 million.

Last weekend's winner, Marvel's hit space adventure "Guardians of the Galaxy," dropped to third place with $8 million at domestic theaters.

"No Good Deed" stars Idris Elba as an escaped prisoner who terrorizes a mother and her two children after he shows up at their suburban Atlanta home claiming car trouble. Taraji P. Henson plays the mother. REUTERS

Harry Connick Jr. talks to the animals

Interview. The singer-actor is also amazed there's a "Dolphin Tale 2."

You aren't the only one mystified that there's a sequel to 2011's "Dolphin Tale," which ended with the aquatic mammal in need of a prosthetic tail getting a prosthetic tail. Where do you go from there?

"When they came up to me to do 'Dolphin Tale 2,' I thought they were kidding around," recalls Connick. "How do you make another one of these? And when I read the script, I got it."

In real life, the dolphin on which the movie is based — Winter — lost her mate at the

Harry Connick Jr. hangs with his screen daughter (Cozi Zuehlsoff) in "Dolphin Tale 2." / WILSON WEBB

Clearwater Marine Aquarium (which is now a major tourist attraction). The story of finding her a new one became a new script.

Reunited with the same cast and characters, Connick didn't have to do much prep work — but acting with animals is always tricky, even when they're as smart as dolphins. "The dolphins maybe don't always do what they're intended to do," he says. "But when you're in an environment like this, it doesn't matter. If it takes an hour to shoot something that should have taken half an hour, nobody really cares."

Connick doesn't act too often; he's busy with his music and appearances on "American Idol." But this part of his career goes all the way back to a small role in 1990's "Memphis Belle."

"I like performing," he explains. "Way back when I was a kid, I was involved in different kinds of performing — whether it was theater or playing music on stage. [Film] was just a natural progression of what I've always done."

The dark side

Not for the family

The last three films Connick Jr. has been in have been family-oriented, including the first "Dolphin Tale." He can do darker. His acting breakthrough was 1995's "Copycat," in which he played a giddy serial killer. "It's not family films, per se, that I'm drawn to. Whether I'm doing 'Dolphin Tale' or 'Copycat,' the thing that draws me is they're good stories," he says. "If the next 10 scripts I read were great family films, I'd do 'em. If they were all dark, twisted stuff like 'Bug,' I'd do them too."

And he really doesn't have an agenda. "Things happen organically. Projects are born out of a chance meeting or a whim of an idea. That will never stop. I never sit down and plan things. Things kind of happen," he says.

As for his role in "Copycat," when asked why director Jon Amiel thought of the singer to play a deranged psychopath, he says he never got an answer. "That made me wonder what led him to believe I could do that," he recalls. "That's a question I'd like answered at some point."

Janel Parrish

Claim to fame: Swinging back and forth between good and evil as Mona on "Pretty Little Liars"

Chances: We assume Parrish is not quite as sneaky in real life as she is on "Liars," but we're kind of hoping she plots against the other contestants to rise to the top, just like Mona would.

Alfonso Ribeiro

Claim to fame: Carlton from "Fresh Prince of Bel-Air"

Chances: A compilation of his dancing on "Fresh Prince" has been viewed 7.5 million times on YouTube. Carlton wasn't known for his moves, but his enthusiasm wins people over. Our money is on Ribeiro to win the whole thing.

Michael Waltrip

Claim to fame: NASCAR driver

Chances: Now that he's semi-retired from racing, he runs marathons. Clearly, Waltrip has a competitive side, which always helps on something like "DWTS." Maybe that drive (see what we did there?) will help him master a new set of skills.

Tavis Smiley

Claim to fame: Serious journalist, hosted two presidential debates

Chances: Smiley has many honorary doctorates for his work discussing racial issues, but we're not sure any of those will help him on the dance floor. We like the idea of an NPR host getting a little goofy, though.

Antonio Sabato Jr.

Claim to fame: "General Hospital," "Melrose Place"

Chances: Sabato seems like one of those contestants who will surprise viewers with his charm and pizzazz. We give him good odds for reminding people why they liked him in the '90s.

Sadie Robertson

Claim to fame: She's on "Duck Dynasty."

Chances: Robertson has written a book and is apparently a motivational speaker despite the fact that she's only 17. With her full schedule, will she have time to focus on her dancing (and also high school, because she's still in high school)?

ONE OF SIX

ONE OUT OF EVERY SIX PEOPLE IN THE U.S. SUFFER FROM GENITAL HERPES INFECTION

For some, outbreaks of genital herpes can be painful and frequent. Fenway Health is enrolling participants for a clinical trial of a new investigational therapeutic vaccine that may reduce the number and severity of outbreaks and lessen chances of passing herpes infection on to partners.

- Are you 18 to 50 years old?
- Have you had repeat outbreaks of genital herpes in the last year or prior to starting a suppressive medication?
- Are you HIV negative and Hepatitis B and C negative?

If so, you may be eligible to participate in a one year research study. Participants will be compensated for their time.

For more information and to see if you are eligible, call 617.927.6450 or email HSV@fenwayhealth.org.

Reasons to jog your memory

When it comes exercise, even a little bit goes a long way. EDWARD THOMPSON

Research is pointing firmly to sitting as the new smoking. While most people know that exercise can curb obesity, heart disease and even certain types of cancer, it also has immediate effects on brainpower. "Physical exercise turns our brain on," says John Ratey, a psychiatry professor at Harvard University.

As it's become widely accepted that some form of aerobic workout is the most beneficial, harder regimens like CrossFit and endurance races have popularized. A jog around the block no longer seems adequate. But that's not so.

Ratey, a 66-year-old exercise advocate who has been known to make his audiences do Hindu squats, wants to take the focus off people's choice of activity. You don't have to push yourself to the limit to gain the benefits of exercise, he says: "Get out and walk!"

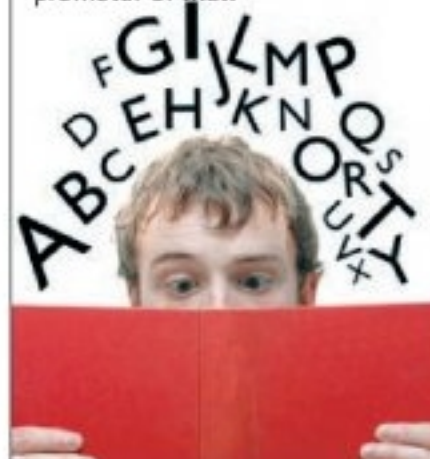

Want to make your meeting productive? Try taking it out of the conference room. / THINKSTOCK

1 Improve your meetings

Some of the most creative companies in the world like Google, Facebook and Apple are known for their walking meetings. Interestingly, the surroundings and environment don't greatly impact thinking, according to a recent study: "I thought walking outside would blow everything out of the water, but walking on a treadmill in a small, boring room still had strong results, which surprised me," explains co-author Marily Oppezzo.

2 Enjoy a lifetime of learning

Getting your body moving will improve your ability to retain and manipulate information. "Doing exercise promotes improvement overall in our capacity to learn," Ratey says. "What it does in the brain is immense and it really improves the brain's ability to be [adaptable]. The only way we learn anything is to have ourselves grow at the nerve cell level, so exercise is the best promoter of that."

3 Stay at the top of your game

Being active is vital to preventing the onset of cognitive decline that causes dementia and Alzheimer's, which can't necessarily be kept at bay through brain teasers like Sudoku and crosswords alone.

"Physical exercise turns our brain on."

John Ratey, clinical professor of psychiatry at Harvard University

4 Become a morning person

A quick trot up to the office might just be what's needed to prevent that morning meeting sluggishness. In a recent study, researchers from Stanford University found that even a 10-minute walk stimulates creativity inside the brain. "[Study subjects] who were walking were more talkative than those sitting down — their ideas are more active and more urgent in streaming out," study co-author Dan Schwartz tells us.

Getting in. College admissions demystified with analysis of the latest trends

The average student applies to eight or nine schools, according to AdmitSee. DIGITAL VISION

To college hopefuls, the perfect application is as coveted and elusive as the allegorical golden ticket. Yet information about what admissions offices are actually looking for has always been scarce — until now.

Startup AdmitSee collects and analyzes applications from students who successfully matriculated to undergraduate and graduate schools to provide high schoolers with a profile of what catches the eye of admissions officers.

"I think what people are most nervous about is the question of 'How do I make myself stand out from the crowd?'" says AdmitSee co-founder Stephanie Shyu. She and business partner Lydia Pierce Fayal launched the site last year. Below, they share the trends that AdmitSee has discovered.

What is the most popular way to start an essay?

Given the topics that most students write about (see right), it's no surprise that nearly half of the essays AdmitSee collected began with either the word "I" or "I'm."

Many essays also begin with quotes — but not neces-

Essays

What is the best topic for the personal essay?

Finding the perfect essay topic can be agonizing, but it turns out that most students stick to three basic themes:

- Creative personal story
- Issue of personal significance
- Family background

sarily famous words. "Students often quote personal conversations as a segue into an anecdote," says Shyu.

What extracurricular activities do colleges like?

Most students are drawn to a core set of after-school activities. The most popular clubs (excluding sports) are:

- National Honor Society
- Tutoring or mentoring
- Student council
- (Three-way tie) Debate team; math team; school newspaper or magazine

LAKSHMI GANDHI

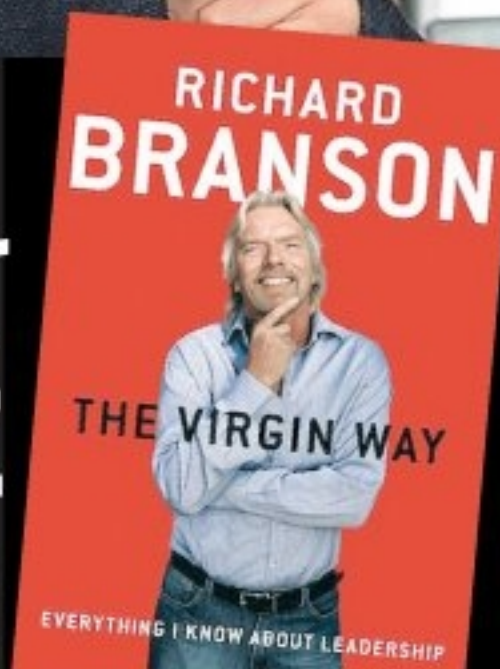

Billionaire businessman Sir Richard Branson explains his unique leadership style in his new book.

Sir Richard Branson has been an entrepreneur nearly his entire life, founding the now-famous Virgin Group in 1972 at the age of 22. In his latest book, "The Virgin Way: Everything I Know About Leadership," the businessman takes readers through everything from his hiring process to how entrepreneurs can plan their next move.

We sat down with Branson (in his limo, naturally) to get his advice for young workers.

Q&A RICHARD BRANSON GOOD LEADERS MAKE JOBS MORE FUN

What's the most important thing for recent college grads and other 20-somethings to keep in mind as they start out in their careers?

Well, I think you only live once, and it's important to spend your life doing something you enjoy and really interests you and that you'll be really pleased spending your life doing. So if you have a great idea for a business, if you feel you have an idea that can fill a gap and help make people's lives better: Try it and make a go of it. Don't do a profession because you think you're going to make a lot of money in it and it's going to be horribly dull.

A lot of young people are told things like, "You need to do this, this and this, or you need this degree, before you can start a business." How do you know when the time is right?

I think if you want to run a business, I'm not sure that it's necessary to spend too many years studying. I think it's better if you get on and do it and learn while doing it. But if you have five or six years building in business rather than studying to build a business, you're five or six years ahead of everyone else and then you're not saddled with loads of debt. If you want to become an entrepreneur, I'd say it's worth taking the risk.

How do you know who to hire and who to trust?

Well, if it's your first business, I suspect you'll have some life-long friends, and it's always good to have friends around you when building a business. I had two or three friends join me in the early days and it was delightful. Then you just have to get out and interview people and see if they are as passionate about what you do as you are. You want people who passionately believe in what you want to do and surround yourself with those kinds of people.

You've said that you don't read business books.

Yeah, I haven't read business books; I've glanced at one or two. I think there's too many lists. So, what I've tried to do is write a book that's more readable and it tells stories.

What is the biggest mistake young entrepreneurs are making?

I think a lot of young entrepreneurs are not good delegators; they try to do everything themselves. So they need to fight early on to learn the art of delegation.

Why do you feel corporations are so stifling of creativity and personality?

It's strange, because working for companies should be a fun, pleasant experience. And so often, as you say, it is a stifling, boring experience. And people are made to dress in formal clothes — ties and suits. They work out of unpleasant environments and that constitutes their life. Most of their life is spent at work. It is sad and it often comes down to bad leadership, sadly, and a lack of realization that if they were good leaders they would make sure that people enjoyed their jobs.

LAKSHMI GANDHI
@LakshmiGandhi
lakshmi.gandhi@metro.us

On describing his personality

"I don't take no for an answer. I like to enjoy what I do. I like to create things I'm proud of. I like to surround myself with great people. And I give those people a lot of freedom to create great things." Branson

His tips for somebody who has a great idea, but isn't sure how to sell someone on it

"Keep it simple and clear-cut. And if you find that everybody blanks over, then maybe your idea is not a good one. Having said that, most people would say why an idea is not good. It's very rare people will say an idea is great. So in the end, if you really believe in what you want to do, you just have to get on and do it."

Horoscope

♏ Virgo | Aug. 23-Sept. 22.
It's time to budget. Use discipline to avoid making impulse purchases. Keep close tabs on your bank account.

♎ Libra | Sept. 23-Oct. 22.
Welcome a change of scenery or shifts in your daily routine. Whether you take a day trip or make improvements, it will give you a fresh new outlook.

♏ Scorpio | Oct. 23-Nov. 21.
Look for diverse ways to finance a business idea. Study the market for useful tips. Make investments that will help you be more financially independent.

♐ Sagittarius | Nov. 22-Dec. 21.
A romantic relationship with someone who works in the same field as you will give you a professional boost, as long as you ignore the meddling of your peers. Modify your schedule to suit your needs.

♑ Capricorn | Dec. 22-Jan. 20.
Refrain from making major changes. Consider the long-term effects first. Circumstances are bound to change unexpectedly, leaving you in an awkward position. Your strategy must be concise.

♒ Aquarius | Jan. 21-Feb. 18.
Let bygones be bygones. Your identity and experiences will shape your future. You have a lot going for you, so make the most of it.

♊ Pisces | Feb. 19-March 20.
You may find yourself in a predicament if you have overloaded your schedule. Look to your peers for assistance if you think you will fail to take care of all your responsibilities.

♈ Aries | March 21-April 20.
Say what you feel. You will be off the mark if you try to tell others what you think they want to hear. Honesty is the best policy.

♉ Taurus | April 21-May 21.
Reach out to those less fortunate than you. Dwelling on your disappointments is unproductive and detrimental to your health. You have a lot to offer, and will gain much from helping others.

♊ Gemini | May 22-June 20.
You will be emotionally vulnerable today. Your heartfelt outpourings will make others uncomfortable. Say what's on your mind, but use diplomacy.

♋ Cancer | June 21-July 22.
Personal problems won't go away unless you address each situation head-on. Deal swiftly with any issue that interferes with your daily routine.

♌ Leo | July 23-Aug. 22.
You will discover an opportunity to put your special talents to good use. Make helping others your top priority. Your assistance will net you approval.

Doing nothing will embolden the powers behind ISIS

Re: 'What does US gain from fighting ISIS?' (Metro, Sept. 12-14) Letter writer Joseph Connell is probably correct to write that for now, "ISIS poses no imminent or credible danger to America's security." The hooligans we see on the evening news are more ludicrous than anything else. The problem is the people is behind them whom we do not see. They are the alumni of Saddam Hussein's Baath Party, who faithfully served the Soviet Union for years. If Vladimir Putin renews his relationship with them, we face years of crises from the Caucasus to the Atlantic that will make the recent difficulties in the Ukraine seem trivial.

SEAN O'ROURKE, VIA EMAIL

I believe this is our best chance to establish a steady foothold in a critical area after being frustrated for decades by our European "allies," the "previous" landlords. This president realizes alliances don't necessarily apply everywhere. This endeavor may define his legacy.

M. HUMAIDAN, VIA EMAIL

Men can be victims, too

The media's broadcast of the condemnation of Ray Rice perpetuates our nation's discrimination on the issue of domestic violence. While the amount of force used by Rice in the incident is debatable, it is indisputable that domestic violence is not gender-specific and male victims of domestic violence are not given the same consideration and assistance by society in general and by the state. If the outcome had resulted in Rice being knocked out, he would have been mocked and most likely, his then-fiancee would not have faced prosecution. Hold females abusers to the same standards as alleged male abusers.

Patriots blast Vikings, are on the board

NFL. The Patriots went down 7-0 early, but rebounded in impressive fashion to earn their first victory of the 2014 season.

Matt Cassel and Matt Asiata carved up the Patriots defense, Miami Dolphins-style, on the first series of Sunday's game at TCF Bank Stadium and the annual guarantee that the Patriots are good for at least 11 wins per season seemed as though its expiration date was finally closing in.

But Devin McCourty's interception and 60-yard return of a Cassel pass at the 7:16 mark of the first quarter signaled the beginning of a textbook Patriots road win and offered assurance that New England will once again be in the mix for AFC supremacy. The Patriots torched Minnesota, 30-7, to move to 1-1 on the 2014 season. The Pats host the Raiders next Sunday (1 p.m., CBS).

With 19 seconds remaining in the second quarter, Chandler Jones blocked a Blair Walsh field goal attempt, scooped the ball up off the ground himself and out-raced the Vikings' special teams unit 58 yards for a highlight reel touchdown. Jones' score put the Patriots up 24-7 heading into halftime.

The New England defense lived up to pre-season expectations against the Vikings, after stumbling against Miami, as it picked off Cassel four times total. Darrelle Revis grabbed his first interception as a member of the Patriots just over a minute into the second quarter as he stepped in front of Vikings receiver Greg Jennings. Rookie defensive lineman Dominique Easley laid out to grab his first career interception with 6:41 remaining in the game, cradling the ball after it was deflected off a Minnesota receiver.

With Vikings star Adrian

Peterson deactivated prior to the game, having been indicted on charges of reckless or negligent injury to a child, the Patriots had the best running back on the field Sunday in Stevan Ridley. The Pats made a point of getting Ridley involved early and often Sunday and the back responded with 101 yards of rushing and a touchdown on 25 carries.

Tom Brady was efficient, hitting on 15-of-22 passes for 149 yards and a touchdown. Brady did not throw an interception and finished with a 102.3 rating.

Julian Edelman led the Pats in receiving with 81 yards and a touchdown on six catches.

"I'm happy we won. I just wish we'd go out there and play like we're capable. That's just the way it is. I'm glad we won, great team win, a lot of guys contributed, a lot of great plays. ... I think we have a lot of work to do."

What went right

1 All lined up — Tom Brady was sacked just once against the Vikings after unceremoniously being dumped four times against the Dolphins last week. He had much more time in the pocket, showing that the Pats' offensive line corrected a few things last week in practice.

2 Star search — The Vikings were without Adrian Peterson, so if their offense was going to have a big day it would likely fall on the shoulders of Cordarrelle Patterson, who ran wild on the Rams last week. But the Pats did a nice job containing Patterson, who finished with four catches for 56 yards. Matt Asiata was held to 36 yards on 13 carries. Credit the Patriots defense, which had multiple players step up. Donta Hightower had a pair of sacks, as did Chandler Jones. Devin McCourty, Darrelle Revis, Logan Ryan and Dominique Easley each had interceptions.

3 Multiple options — Feeding Stevan Ridley the ball was surprising, particularly because Shane Vereen was effective early in this one, as he was last week against the Dolphins. But the Pats made it a point to establish the run, giving Ridley the ball 25 times. He carried the ball just eight times last week in Miami. They also didn't have to lean on Rob Gronkowski as much, as it looked like they were trying to do early on last week. Gronkowski was targeted 11 times last week and just six times this week. He finished Sunday having caught four balls for 32 yards.

Bills dump Miami, move to 2-0

NFL roundup.

Buffalo heads the list of several surprising 2-0 teams across the league.

The Bills are staying in Buffalo, and it's entirely possible that their new era will feature winning football. Buffalo is 2-0 for the first time since 2011, thanks in large part to C.J. Spiller's 102-yard kick-off return for a touchdown midway through the third quarter. The score put Buffalo up 16-3 over the Dolphins and the Bills walked away with a 29-10 win. Miami running back Knowshon Moreno suffered an elbow injury just 11 minutes into the game and he did not return. Lamar Miller ran for just 46 yards on 11 carries in relief of Moreno. Miami is now 1-1 on the year. Buffalo's rookie wide receiver Sammy Watkins was sterling, catching eight balls for 117 yards and a touchdown.

Browns 26, Saints 24

Brian Hoyer didn't get the payoff he was looking for last week in leading the Browns to a near comeback victory over the Steelers, but this time he earned Cleveland a "W" by performing well early and late. The Browns went up 10-0 in the first quarter but New Orleans held a 17-16 lead by the 9:32 mark of the third quarter. After going back-and-forth for much of the second half, the game was ultimately decided when Hoyer guided the Browns to an 85-yard drive late in the fourth. Billy Cundiff's 29-yard field goal was good with three seconds remaining and Cleveland dropped the Saints to 0-2.

- Cowboys 26, Titans 10: The Dallas defense picked off Jake Locker twice.
- Cardinals 25, Giants 14: Eli Manning threw two interceptions.
- Chargers 30, Seahawks 21: Philip Rivers threw three touchdowns in the upset.
- Broncos 24, Chiefs 17: Emmanuel Sanders had 108 yards receiving.
- Packers 31, Jets 24: Jordy Nelson had a whopping 209 yards of receiving.

Buffalo's Sammy Watkins had a 117-yard receiving day for the victorious Bills Sunday. / GETTY IMAGES

Bengals 24, Falcons 10

Cincinnati's rugged defense had little issue grounding the high-flying Falcons Sunday as Atlanta did not score a touchdown until there was 8:35 remaining in the game. Andy Dalton threw for 252 yards and a touchdown, completing 15-of-23 passes. Matt Ryan was picked off three times by the Bengals, who moved to 2-0.

Panthers 24, Lions 7

The Lions offense, which looked so dynamic last Monday night, looked fatigued six days later. Detroit back Joique Bell was held to 36 yards on 10 carries and Matthew Stafford looked mortal, compiling a 72.5 rating. Cam Newton was efficient in his return from injury, throwing for 281 yards and a touchdown.

A BETTER ROUTE FOR MANAGING OVERACTIVE
BLADDER SHOULD HAVE FEWER BATHROOM STOPS

If the symptoms of overactive bladder (OAB) – such as the frequent and sudden urge to urinate, followed by leakage – are interrupting your day, the SYNERGY study may be an option. It is a clinical research study evaluating an investigational combination of two drugs prescribed for OAB to see if, when taken together, they provide more relief than when taken on their own.

There is no cost to you to participate.

If you qualify and complete the study, you could be compensated up to $350.00 for your participation

To learn more and to see if you may qualify, please contact:
